Lucy Ball, television’s First Lady of Laughter, died due to cardiac arrest. The popular American comedy queen who made the audience of the world laugh heartily week after week had nothing to laugh about in her own life. Lucy had abandoned by her family to lead a lonely and loveless life. The cumulative effect of all this build up was heart ailment which eventually culminated in cardiac arrest.

She was a comedy queen who ruled the roost for over three decades. Her last serial “I Love Lucy” was a big hit. Milton Berle, a top comedian in his own right praised Lucy thus: “In fact she is one of the greatest clowns of all times”. But her own life has been a saga of comedy and tragedy. As the news of her death spread in the United States the media acclaimed her a pioneer who got recognition to small screen through her serials. Lucy, the happy-go-lucky lady did not laugh in her last days. There were reasons for her loneliness. Gray Morton her husband so much obsessed with golf that he had no time for her. Arnez her daughter lived too far away to be of little use and solace. Her son despised her. Added to this woe was the death of Confidante Vivian Vance who played Ethel in the ‘I Love Lucy’.

Lucy and her husband led separate lives. Lucy the loner lived in Beverly Hills and Mortan spent most of his time 115 miles away playing golf in Palm Springs, California. A family friend summed up: “Gray is obsessed with golf and Lucy has become a golf widow” gray did not spend more than a dozen nights in lucy’s Beverly Hills home. It was a part time marriage.
