Profiles

Our Philosophy

"Success doesn't depend upon being at the right place at the right time; it depends upon being ready."

About Us

Kapoor's Workshop on Effective Communication (KWE) was founded in 1998 with the objective of providing quality behavioral training. The institute has gradually spread its wings to also become a familiar name in the field of outdoor training, behavioral profiling and corporate games.

Having started off with our mission to lead people from complacency to completion of living environment, we have and continue to achieve our goal from different angled and facets going with the need of the hour and keeping with the "constancy of change."

Chief Trainer and Founder

Rahul Kapoor is the founder of Kapoor's Workshop on Effective Communication (KWE).

He has done his post graduation in Industrial Relations and Personnel Management from Bhavan's, Bangalore. He also holds a bachelor's degree in Business Management from Bangalore University.

He is a certified trainer for Edward De Bono's 6 Thin king Hats; Certified consultant of Thomas Systems, UK and writes a column called Workwise for Times of India – Education Times (Bi-monthly on Mondays).

Currently, he is conducting training programs in the areas of team building and interview effectiveness. In his eight years of experience, Rahul has trained over twenty thousand people from various backgrounds. He has conducted programs in India, Dubai, Singapore and Sri Lanka.

Clients

He has worked with over a hundred clients. Some of his clientele includes 3M, ACC, AMD, Asian Paints, Dell International Services, HCL Shipara, Infosys, ITC Filtrona, ING Vysya, Met Life, Micro Labs, Philips, SAP Labs, Satyam, Verizon, Yahoo! among others.

GD & Interview

Today GDs and Interviews have become an integral part of selection procedures. It is just not enough to be good in academics alone, one must be able to perform in a group, have good communication skills, should have enough general knowledge and must possess a good personality overall. Our program on GDs and Interviews will equip you with techniques, strategies and tips to enhance your chances to get your dream job.

Objectives

*To expose participants to the existing selection procedures in the corporate world
To help build necessary skills to get a job
To have practice sessions for all participants*

Group Discussions

*What it is?
Why GD?
Types of GD
Sheet strategy
Attributes under scrutiny
Entry strategies
Roles you see in GD
Adding value
Do's and Don'ts*

Interviews

*What it is?
Why Interview?
Interview Types
Before an Interview
During an Interview
After an Interview
Dressing sense
Preparing the mind and Building the cutting edge*

Methodology

Winning Presentation

Ask a group of ten people, selected at random, the question: "What is the thing that frightens you than anything else?" and you can bet at least four will say: "Speaking in public." In today's corporate world one might be asked to make a presentation at any time. It is thus essential for every person in the corporate world to be equipped with the necessary presentation skills.

Objectives

- To understand the importance of presentation skills
- To learn how to prepare speeches and deliver them effectively
- To gain confidence and destroy stage fear.

Program content

- Understanding yourself
- Understanding your audience
- Controlling your Body Language
- Preparing speeches
- Handling the aids
- Handling questions
- Using microphone

Methodology

Questionnaires, presentations by participants and interactive talks.

Winning Presentation

Ask a group of ten people, selected at random, the question: "What is the thing that frightens you than anything else" and you can bet at least four will say: "Speaking in public." In today's corporate world one might be asked to make a presentation at any time. It is thus essential for every person in the corporate world to be equipped with the necessary presentation skills.

Objectives

- To understand the importance of presentation skills
- To learn how to prepare speeches and deliver them effectively
- To gain confidence and destroy stage fear.

Program content

- Understanding yourself
- Understanding your audience
- Controlling your Body Language
- Preparing speeches
- Handling the aids
- Handling questions
- Using microphone

Methodology

Questionnaires, presentations by participants and interactive talks.

Profiles

Our Philosophy

"Success doesn't depend upon being at the right place at the right time; it depends upon being ready."

About Us

Kapoor's Workshop on Effective Communication (KWECC) was founded in 1998 with the objective of providing quality behavioral training. The institute has gradually spread its wings to also become a familiar name in the field of outdoor training, behavioral profiling and corporate games.

Having started off with our mission to lead people from complacency to completion of living environment, we have and continue to achieve our goal from different angled and facets going with the need of the hour and keeping with the "constancy of change."

Chief Trainer and Founder

Rahul Kapoor is the founder of Kapoor's Workshop on Effective Communication (KWECC).

He has done his post graduation in Industrial Relations and Personnel Management from Bhavan's, Bangalore. He also holds a bachelor's degree in Business Management from Bangalore University.

He is a certified trainer for Edward De Bono's 6 Thinking Hats; Certified consultant of Thomas Systems, UK and writes a column called Workwise for Times of India – Education Times (Bi-monthly on Mondays).

Currently, he is conducting training programs in the areas of team building and interview effectiveness. In his eight years of experience, Rahul has trained over twenty thousand people from various backgrounds. He has conducted programs in India, Dubai, Singapore and Sri Lanka.

Clients

He has worked with over a hundred clients. Some of his clientele includes 3M, ACC, AMD, Asian Paints, Dell International Services, HCL Shipara, Infosys, ITC Filtrona, ING Vysya, Met Life, Micro Labs, Philips, SAP Labs, Satyam, Verizon, Yahoo! among others.

GD & Interview

Today GDs and Interviews have become an integral part of selection procedures. It is just not enough to be good in academics alone, one must be able to perform in a group, have good communication skills, should have enough general knowledge and must possess a good personality overall. Our program on GDs and Interviews will equip you with techniques, strategies and tips to enhance your chances to get your dream job.

Objectives

*To expose participants to the existing selection procedures in the corporate world
To help build necessary skills to get a job
To have practice sessions for all participants*

Group Discussions

*What it is?
Why GD?
Types of GD
Sheet strategy
Attributes under scrutiny
Entry strategies
Roles you see in GD
Adding value
Do's and Don'ts*

Interviews

*What it is?
Why Interview?
Interview Types
Before an Interview
During an Interview
After an Interview
Dressing sense
Preparing the mind and Building the cutting edge*

Methodology

Exercises, games, role-plays, presentations by participants and interactive talks.

Facilitator

Palani Rajan

COURSE CONTENT

EDP Series - 1
Goal Setting and Motivation Skills

Everyone has heard to succeed, you need a plan. Why then do so few of us take the time to identify our goals and make a plan for reaching them? This training module will help you in setting goals in a very scientific manner and help you create an action plan to make your goals realities.

Objectives

*To help participants set personal educational and career goals
To train them in self - motivation techniques

Winning Presentation

Ask a group of ten people, selected at random, the question: 'What is the thing that frightens you than anything else?' and you can bet at least four will say: 'Speaking in public.' In today's corporate world one might be asked to make a presentation at any time. It is thus essential for every person in the corporate world to be equipped with the necessary presentation skills.

Objectives

- To understand the importance of presentation skills
- To learn how to prepare speeches and deliver them effectively
- To gain confidence and destroy stage fear.

Program content

- Understanding yourself
- Understanding your audience
- Controlling your Body Language
- Preparing speeches
- Handling the aids
- Handling questions
- Using microphone

Methodology

Questionnaires, presentations by participants and interactive talks.

Facilitator

Palani Rajan

Who should attend?

BBA ~~Semester~~ Students

Duration

2 Full Days

Profile - KWEC

Kapoor's Workshop on Effective Communication (KWEC) was founded in 1998 with the objective of providing quality behavioral training. We have since expanded our vision to cater to the ever-changing needs of the corporate world. Indeed, we believe that change is the only constant and we keep upgrading ourselves to ensure that we provide maximum value to our clients at all times. We are especially proud of our ability to create and nurture high-performance teams for our clients. We do this through our programs that enable the individual to lead his life and career better.

Today, we at KWEC have a reputation for passion and innovation. These twin engines drive us throughout the life cycle of a training program, right from conceptualization to implementation. That's why both our content and style of delivery are unique to us, which ensures a fresh and enriching experience for the participants of our programs.

3rd December 2015

Dear Madam

We from the department of English are proposing to begin the "Communication Skills Enhancement Program" under the 'ENGage Club'. We have successfully completed two rounds of Debate and 5 Film screening activities from the Club in the previous semester (June Nov 2015-16) for all the degree students.

We plan to begin the Verbal Skills classes by next week 8th and complete it by 20th December 2015. Mr.Srinivas has consented to orient the students and give us the list of IV semester BCA students who need this training. Message has been sent to the students for orientation from college.

We, from the department are also gearing up with details for each input and output session. Details related to Budget, classroom allocation, time, study material for students, stationery and remuneration for involved faculty from the department will follow.

Along with CSEW, we are also conducting Language Lab classes simultaneously as a pilot run program. Mr.Vivek P and Ms.Medini P have gone through the software and are ready to conduct classes.

Yours sincerely

Feedback on Language Lab

The Language lab software was a part of the communication workshop that was recently conducted by the 'Engage' club of the department of English. The Language lab software was instrumental in enabling the students in practicing the English language skills acquired from the input session if the workshop.

Certain drawbacks were glaringly visible in the software without which the workshop would have definitely been more useful to the students. The software has good text and reading material which are not just informative but also interesting to read. But these texts are plagued with spelling mistakes, interchanged words and grammatical errors, that are glaring irregularity especially since the passage in focus would be part of an exercise which aims in correcting the students' language. This brings across a paradox where the text given as a sample for correct language has errors in its software. This caused anxiety and confusion for students who believed the text to be right and blindly trusted its language authenticity.

Another hiccup in optimum usage of the language lab was the dependence on networking of the systems and audio devices to be connected to each system. The language lab relies heavily on the trainer's system continuously linked to the students system and this has proven to bring about some serious practical challenges because of a lag in networking and the insistence of students that teacher's attend to their doubts not through a digital platform (as provided in the software) but physical be present around the student to clear their doubts. In addition, the audio language and matter output from the software can be described as basic and is not useful supplement for the text. Many a times the students felt that the presence of audio for an exercise was unnecessary. The students had to get their personal head gears and sometimes it would not connect well with our systems making the session disturbing and not very interesting.

In conclusion the Language lab software can be optimally used if it were made more students friendly. But it definitely is a good addition to the conventional method of language teaching. With little advanced modules and good connectivity it can be implemented for the rest of the batches.

Report on Communication Skills Workshop

The English department as part of the ENGage clubs activities conducted a Communication Skills Workshop from 8th to 15th December 2015 for 2nd year BCA students. The workshop was conducted by the Prof Arachana Lokkur, Prof Vivek P and Prof Medini Prabhu. The 25 hour workshop in addition to classroom sessions also included practical classes with the aid of the Language Lab software.

A typical day in the communication skills workshop would include an audio video session, a group game, a prepared speech session, a debate/table topic activity and an analysis session. Each day would conclude with a 90 min lab session, where the students would use the Language software. Different themes were chosen for each day and the days activities were based on the day's theme.

The analysis session aimed at peer feedback and individual feedback for each participant. Each day of the Communication workshop would include three titles – Best Speaker, Best Evaluator and Best Overall Participation awarded to participants of that day. The three titles would be awarded to students after analyzing there performance by the faculty members

The workshop concluded on 15th December with a validation program which was attended by the Degree College Principal Dr Shankutala Samuelson and PU college principal Prof B R Chandrashekarappa. Also in attendance was the HOD of Computer Science Prof Srinivas. The valedictory ceremony gave in best speaker award, remarkable improvement award and completion certificates for 20 participants. Overall the Language lab was a grand success and all students had an enriching and enjoyable experience.

Feedback on Language Lab 2016-17

The Language lab software was a part of the communication workshop that was recently conducted by the 'Engage' club of the department of English. The Language lab software was instrumental in enabling the students in practicing the English language skills acquired from the input session of the workshop.

Certain drawbacks were glaringly visible in the software without which the workshop would have definitely been more useful to the students. The software has good text and reading material which are not just informative but also interesting to read. But these texts are plagued with spelling mistakes, interchanged words and grammatical errors, that are glaring irregularity especially since the passage in focus would be part of an exercise which aims in correcting the students' language. This brings across a paradox where the text given as a sample for correct language has errors in its software. This caused anxiety and confusion for students who believed the text to be right and blindly trusted its language authenticity.

Another hiccup in optimum usage of the language lab was the dependence on networking of the systems and audio devices to be connected to each system. The language lab relies heavily on the trainer's system continuously linked to the students system and this has proven to bring about some serious practical challenges because of a lag in networking and the insistence of students that teacher's attend to their doubts not through a digital platform (as provided in the software) but physical be present around the student to clear their doubts. In addition, the audio language and matter output from the software can be described as basic and is not useful supplement for the text. Many a times the students felt that the presence of audio for an exercise was unnecessary. The students had to get their personal head gears and sometimes it would not connect well with our systems making the session disturbing and not very interesting.

In conclusion the Language lab software can be optimally used if it were made more students friendly. But it definitely is a good addition to the conventional method of language teaching. With little advanced modules and good connectivity it can be implemented for the rest of the batches. Still it came handy when we need to focus on the weaker section in English knowledge competence.

There are traditionally two basic ways of organizing the vast and rather heterogeneous material called literature: one can arrange it by genre (that is, by type or kind) or by historical period. The latter approach is called literary history. Literary history breaks down the historical flow of literature into distinct periods arranged in chronological order and classifies literature on the basis of the assumption that the literary texts written in a given time span have certain characteristic features, norms, assumptions in common, while they differ in these features, norms, assumptions from works written in another time span.

This approach makes a systematic organization of the material of literature possible and opens fruitful ways of discussing this material. Identifying the common characteristics of a period in literary history, pointing out differences between two periods, or showing how literature evolves from one age to another are all fruitful considerations for the literary historian. Apart from this, literary history is also very useful in the study of individual works of literature. It is a common experience that when we read a text we tend to feel more comfortable if we can place it in literary history. This fact indicates that the historical background provides an important context for understanding literature. The more we are aware of the characteristic beliefs, attitudes, assumptions of a given period, the more we can appreciate a literary text written in that period. In some cases, moreover, it is quite impossible to understand works of literature without some background knowledge of the period in which they were written. Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde, for example, would hardly make any sense without an awareness of the medieval concept of love and crucial aspects of Spenser's Faerie Queene would be ignored without some background knowledge of Elizabethan politics.

Periods of English Literature

Middle Ages (ca. 500 A.D. – 1500)

Anglo-Saxon or Old English literature (500 A.D to the 12th century): the English literature of this period is made up entirely of oral poetry. The characteristic literary form is alliterative accentual verse. The greatest literary achievement of the age is the epic Beowulf (written down in ca. 1000).

Middle English literature (from the end of the 12th century to 1500): a new period begins because the Norman Conquest (1066) has brought significant changes both to the English language and to literature. The greatest poet of this period is Geoffrey Chaucer (ca.1343-1400). Characteristic genres are the verse romance (e.g. Sir Gawain and the Green Knight, or Chaucer's Troilus and Criseyde), mystery plays (e.g. the Second Shepherd's Play), and morality plays (e.g. Everyman).

Renaissance

This is a period that spans the 16th and 17th centuries in England (note that in Italy the Renaissance started as early as the 14th century). The most famous English authors in this period are Sir Thomas More, Edmund Spenser, William Shakespeare, John Donne, John Milton. The reign of Queen Elizabeth (1558-1603) is usually considered to be the high point of the English Renaissance and is often referred to as the Elizabethan era.

Note that in Europe the Renaissance typically ends in what is described as the Baroque period. Although in art and architecture this category is applicable to British art history, as well, in literature there was no distinct baroque period in Britain.

The Restoration and the 18th century (1660-1800)

Although such Renaissance authors as John Milton and Andrew Marvell died long after the Restoration of the Stuarts took place. 1660, the year of the Restoration, is still regarded as the start of a new era. This period is predominantly neo-classical in its aesthetic attitude (especially the Augustan age 1660-1740) and characteristically rationalistic in its outlook. For the latter reason this era is also often referred to as the Age of Reason, the Age of Common Sense, or the Enlightenment. Characteristic authors are John Dryden, Alexander Pope, Jonathan Swift, Samuel Johnson. The 18th century also saw the rise of the English novel. The most important English novelists of the period were Daniel Defoe, Samuel Richardson, Henry Fielding, Lawrence Sterne.

Romantic and Victorian period (roughly the 19th century)

Romanticism (1789-1832) probably started earlier in England than in any other European country. The characteristic achievement of the era is to be found in the poetry of William Blake, William Wordsworth, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, George Gordon Byron, Percy Bysshe Shelley, and John Keats.

Note that in European literature the term Romanticism is usually used to describe the period starting with the 1830's. The dates of English Romanticism given above roughly correspond to German 'early romanticism' (Frühromantik), while the period of European Romanticism covers approximately the English Victorian Age.

The Victorian period covers the years of Queen Victoria's reign (1837-1901). Victorian poetry, as practiced variously by such authors as Alfred Tennyson, Robert Browning, Algernon Charles Swinburne, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, is more or less a continuation of the traditions of English Romanticism. The Victorian era is also the heyday of the novel. Charles Dickens, the Brontë sisters, William Makepeace Thackeray, George Eliot and Thomas Hardy all wrote their masterpieces in this period.

20th century

Pre World War II: perhaps the most characteristic literary achievement of British literature before 1945 is the modernism associated with the names of Henry James, Joseph Conrad, T. S. Eliot, James Joyce, Virginia Woolf and others. It is characterised by experiments in form and style, and a breaking away from established rules and conventions.

Post-war literature (postmodernism): as it is practically the present, this is the most difficult period to define, especially as there is no clear dividing line between modernism and post-modernism. The post-war period, however, produced experimental techniques in all genres, such as the Theatre of the Absurd, associated with Samuel Beckett and Harold Pinter, and new modes in poetry and fiction, too. Some outstanding authors in English literature are Philip Larkin, Ted Hughes, Salman Rushdie, John Fowles, Kazuo Ishiguro and Tom Stoppard.
